NT the world of

THE UNIVERSE is composed of an infinite number of worlds; a country, a town, a house, a tree, a book, our very minds are all worlds in themselves. In this way New Trier also is a separate, vibrant microcosm. It, like the larger world we call the universe, is made of many smaller components. The seasons of the year: the football stands, well-aimed snowballs, a tulip on a teacher's desk; the cycle of learning: listening in lecture, a conference with a teacher, studying, and passing on knowledge to other students; the muscle, the grace and the competition of athletics; the student governing, the crowd, the dating; all of these are separate domains yet parts of that which, through photography, we have sought to capture on paper: the world of New Trier High School.

STUDENT COUNCIL CHALLENGES N.T. APATHY

OVERCOMING THE STIGMA OF AN UNRESPONSIVE STUDENTRY, COUNCIL BEGAN TO DEMONSTRATE THAT IT WAS IN MANY WAYS NECESSARY TO THE SCHOOL.

Student Council carried on a fine tradition of service and leadership despite manifold population problems. Amidst the general confusion of Council's work there was much that was routine: administering the study halls and library, chartering new clubs, and passing the annual Bermuda Shorts Bill; but there were also several honest attempts, some of which were very successful, to reach the individual student and bring him closer to Council.

Much attention was given to the natural separation between Council and the freshmen. During the first semester a bill was passed which scheduled all freshmen to attend at least one Council meeting in order to get acquainted with the organization. Later in the year, another bill was passed which allowed each freshman advisor room to elect, shortly after the beginning of the first semester, a representative "observer" to give the class better communication with Council.

Recovering from their annual shock over school apathy, the Board members and reps made concrete efforts to increase interest in Council. Bill Reinsch as new head of Honor and standard bearer of the Code of Ethics introduced the Honor Poll, an inquiry circulated in all English classes designed to make students think about their concepts of honor and ethics. As an aid to the student, the College Hour was established during which upperclassmen had the opportunity to talk to last year's graduates and to discuss with them their various colleges.

Steady and intensive effort on the part of the heads of Lunch Hall and their committees produced noticeable improvements in the conditions. Such innovations as the separate milk and juice lines were successful attempts to minimize confusion. Incited by the scarcity of food during eighth period lunch and unimpeded by the proximity of graduation, the seniors unselfishly strove to pass legislation, for future upperclassmen, which would reverse the order of lunch and advisory periods, thus enabling seniors and juniors to eat in the more desirable fifth and sixth lunch periods.

During the year, Council participated in a number of local and state conventions, one of which was held at the Sherman Hotel in Chicago. At this meeting, New Trier won first prize for their display on the functions of Student Council. Such recognition was indicative of the respect that Student Council continued to command, not only outside but inside the school.

In spite of their diverse legislation and intensive publicity campaign, Council was not able to overcome the challenge presented by the high percentage of students who were indifferent to the procedings of the organization. This problem, always a serious one, may soon be alleviated, for the new officers outlined many plans with which they hoped to combat this apathy during the following year.

PEP CLUB

Pep Club's active program of promoting school spirit inspired a greater sports attendance than ever before. For the first time, Pep Club sent a bus load of New Trier fans to the Centralia basketball tournament. A new Pep Club point system, encompassing attendance at swimming, gymnastics, wrestling, football, basketball, and baseball events, boosted the number of New Trier spectators and encouraged Pep Club members to attend a variety of athletic meets. With a growing membership of 800 girls, Pep Club re-organized its records by making a file card for every girl. In order to explain Pep Club's purpose, booklets were distributed to all freshmen girls. Members rallied together weekly to practice cheers and create enthusiasm for the weekend sports events. Huge Pep Club signs, plastered across the dining hall walls, publicized games and stimulated student interest. The climax of the year's events was the Pep Club banquet, when the new cheerleaders and board members were announced.

Founder and past president of Aesculapians, Jean McJohnston conducted the election for the president who was to replace her. (Rau)

The AESCULAPIANS, who derived their name from the Greek god of medicine, began their second year as a club under the direction of Mr. Swoap. President Jean McJohnston, Vice-President Grant McLean, and Secretary-Treasurer Lucy Monroe continued to serve as the officers until early spring when new officers were elected. The purpose of the club is to inform and encourage prospective medical students and, with this goal in mind, approximately forty members made several trips to Evanston Hospital where they toured the X-ray and administrative departments. A number of doctors, one of whom lectured on internal medicine, were invited to speak informally at the meetings.

CLUBS

Astronomy Club sponsor, Mr. Cox, and members Bill Alschuler and Mark Ringel, work on this year's project: a telescope. (Cherpak)

Inspired by the presence of four new exchange students from Australia, Malaya, Japan and Norway, the AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE CLUB began a year of activities under the leadership of President Jim Miller. Working in co-operation with the adult AFS chapter, the other officers: Vice-President Peggy Fulton, Secretary Sally Sherman, and Treasurer Nancy Wiggers, and the club members presented the Annual Foreign Film Festival. In December, the group expanded their international program by holding an open-house for foreign graduate students in the Chicago area. The year's most exciting event was the week-end in March, during which members entertained nearly a hundred AFS students from all sections of Illinois bringing many people of different backgrounds together and thus enabling them to increase their understanding of their fellow man.

Wendy Sammeth pauses for a moment with a visiting exchange student before joining the other AFS guests and their hosts at the Weekend Dance. (Cherpak)

ALPHA TRIERI, New Trier's astronomy club which consists of fifteen active members, met weekly under the supervision of Mr. Cox. Although the most activity came in the spring and in the fall, members managed to keep busy during the winter by constructing a club telescope, by organizing a program under the AAVSO, and by taking field trips to neighboring observatories. The coming of spring afforded the club members occasions for more star parties at Duke Childs Field and an opportunity to expand its lecturing program on astronomy at several local grade schools. For the second consecutive year, the club was headed by President Bill Alschuler, with John Friedman serving as the secretary.

Servicing the fish tanks is only one of the varied Aquarium Club activities. (Gordon)

AQUARIUM CLUB members need not have their own equipment to enjoy the cultivation of fish. Club owned and operated tanks were available to those who wanted to breed fish. Several excursions were a part of the club's varied activities. The irregularly held meetings were presided over by President Dave Downey, Secretary-Treasurer Ginnie Simpson, and Project Chairman Scott Knowles. Mr. Hoyt is the faculty sponsor.

Approximately eight students participated in the ART SEMINAR, the purpose of which is to discus various works of art. Although the group elected no officers, different students, as well as Mr. Robert Kuennen, faculty sponsor, led the discussions. The Seminar is open to students from all classes. A sincere interest and an appreciation of art are the only requisites for membership.

Under the guidance of Mr. Paumer, the BERNOULLIANS indulged in a year of successful mathematical discussions. For the first time, the club engaged in a group study—matrices. All members participating in the program purchased SMSG textbooks and did "homework" between the semi-monthly meetings. Other aspects of the meetings were problem solving sessions and matho-philosophical discussions.

As a result of considerable student interest, the BRIDGE CLUB was reorganized this year after having been inactive since 1961. The club met every Thursday in the faculty dining hall to play bridge and discuss various techniques of the game. Mr. Jewell, sponsor, instructed and challenged the thirty members, ranging from beginning to advanced groups. Meetings were organized by Donna Goodman, president, who with Mr. Jewell and the members planned an intra-club tournament. Next year, the club hopes to arrange inter-scholastic bridge tournaments, including enthusiasts from the entire North Shore.

The CHESS CLUB enjoyed another year of successful tournaments. Reciprocal matches were played between the New Trier team and that of Indianapolis High School. In addition, the intra-school and inter-school competition continued under the sponsorship of Mr. Gerol.

The FILM GUILD presents high quality films of an artistic nature to the student body at a minimum cost. Under the sponsorship of Mr. McKendall and the leadership of President Jeff Holmgren, Vice-President Goddard Graves, Secretary Marjorie Meyers, and Treasurer Shelley Beman, the film Guild expanded its program to include film production. Among the films shown this year were "Wild Strawberries," "A Nous la Liberté," and "The Gold Rush."

Although organized only one year ago, the FOLK SINGING SOCIETY has gathered over one hundred fifty enthusiastic members. At the bi-monthly "hoots," New Trier students as well as guests from other schools performed and helped to stimulate interest throughout the township. The major event was the annual Festival, which this year featured the Chad Mitchell Trio.

FRENCH CLUB created an authentic atmosphere through lectures, plays, and informal discussions in French. Assisted by the sponsor, Mrs. Morris, the forty members of the club organized a Halloween booth, presented three short plays, and assembled a collection of stories and poems written by students for "Le Flambeau." A trip to Chicago for the annual club dinner at a French restaurant completed the year's activities.

The FUTURE NURSES OF AMERICA CLUB enabled the fifty girls who participated in its activities to learn more about nursing as a possible career. The meetings, which combined lectures and field trips, were arranged and conducted by President Nancy Yates, Vice-President Peggy O'Brien, Secretary Betsy Blackburn, and Treasurer Pam Moreen.

At a Future Teachers of America meeting Joan Ford, Nancy Zuidema, Jaci Hanna, and Tracy Donaldson discuss the fine points of teaching with Mrs. Lenard (sponsor) and Dr. Bristol, superintendent of Joseph Sears School. (Actipes)

The purpose of the FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA CLUB is to stimulate interest in all fields of education. Sponsored by Mrs. Lenard, the club contained twenty-five upperclass members, meeting twice a month. Activities this year included lectures from guest speakers, field trips, films, and joint discussions.

Howie Klee told the Geography Club about his summer in Japan. (Actipes)

Members of the GEOGRAPHY CLUB met twice a month under the sponsorship of Mr. Peterson to discuss their travels and to show slides they had taken. The high-point of the year was the fourth annual hike from the South Side of Chicago into the Loop. The club also ran a Halloween booth, held a traditional Christmas party at the home of President Joan Ford, and took several other field trips around the Chicago area.

GERMAN CLUB—STANDING: Todd, Mr. Gould, Evers, Dangirdas. SEATED: Seamon, Mooij. (Cherpak)

GERMAN CLUB'S most exciting project this year was the exchange of German and English text books with the students of Trier, West Germany. The forty members of the club sold candy and raised $180 for this project. Under the direction of Mr. Gould, the club met monthly to practice speaking German and to study German culture. The club also ran a booth at the Halloween party, where it was possible to win German pretzels and root beer.

INTERFAITH BOARD—FRONT: Mr. Gregory (sponsor), Susie Naiburg, Dick Turner. REAR: Leslie Desmond, Lynn Whittemore, Nancy Leahy. (Gordon)

Films, lectures, and student discussions entitled "That Old Time Religion" and "Religion and Reaction" highlighted INTERFAITH'S year. Meeting four times at various houses of worship, Interfaith encouraged members of all classes to join in discussions to broaden their scope and understanding of their religion and the religion of their fellows. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Gregory, the Interfaith board was composed of Susie Naiburg, President; Leslie Desmond, Vice-President; Dick Turner, Treasurer; and Nancy Leahy, Head of Publicity.

Consuls John Warren and John Lafferty discuss the classics at a Latin Club meeting. (Rau)

Consul John Warren, Alter Consul John Lafferty, and a hierarchy of lesser officials presided over LATIN CLUB this year. The club, which is open to students from all Latin classes, served to promote interest in the Latin language and in Roman culture. With this aim in mind, Mr. Flaherty showed his slides of Rome and lectured at one of the meetings. The club also sponsored a fund-raising film under the direction of Dr. Drake and had several guest speakers.

The members of the LENS CLUB, led by their sponsor, Mr. D. Smith, spent the year in pursuit of subjects to photograph. On Studio Nights, girls posed for pictures which were submitted to the Lens Club Photography Contests, the first of which was won by Bruce Gordon. Other highlights were equipment sales and a camping trip, during which the members photographed wildlife. Barry Fox served as president and Jim Rosenberg was Secretary-Treasurer.

The purpose of the FRESHMAN MATH CLUB is to discuss topics that are not available in the math curriculum. Subjects such as Pythagorean triples, number systems, topology, and number theory, were selected by the members for discussion. Special events were movies and field trips, led by Mr. Tenney, their sponsor. Officers were: Michael Wolf, Brian O'Connor, Larry Rosenwald, and Sally Rimkus.

John Tenney explains a difficult quadratic equation to Brian O'Connor, Randy Rensch, and Mike Wolf, fellow members of the Freshman Math Club. (Rau)

The SOPHOMORE MATH CLUB is intended for sophomores whose intellect is not sufficiently stimulated by the regular math courses. Under the sponsorship of Miss Cornell, the group held weekly meetings that were often well attended. The key to a successful year was group participation in discussions of higher mathematics and an occasional guest speaker. The meetings were directed by Gordon Murray, the president. Rori Sellers served as vice-president, and Ruth Nothmann was secretary.

Boys intersted in models of planes, railroads, and cars, participated in the MODEL CLUB. The club owns its own gas plane which the boys fly on Saturdays in the fall and spring. Railroaders saw movies at the meetings, and one enthusiast rode the North Shore Line during the last day of its operation. Car lovers brought their models to the meetings, during which races were held. The highlights of the year for the members of the Model Club were the fall and spring picnics in Northfield.

A woodwind ensemble performs under the direction of Mr. Mages at an evening meeting of the Senior Music Club. (Rau)

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Ream, SENIOR MUSIC CLUB met once a month for dinner and an evening of student performances. The officers, President Rick Thorsen, Vice-President Betty Wenzel, Secretary Jean McJohnston, and Treasurer Al Stern were responsible for organizing these gatherings. Due to their expert planning, members saw presentations ranging from an aria to the entr'act from Lagniappe. The two outstanding events of the year were the traditional Speciality Night and the program of original compositions.

JUNIOR MUSIC CLUB, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Bradburn, offered aspiring musicians a congenial atmosphere in which to display their talents. Members demonstrated a variety of musical skills, although piano and voice proved to be the most popular media of entertainment. This year the club expanded to include seventy members, most of whom were freshmen. The group was lead by President Marian Bliss, Vice-President Carol Chapin, Secretary Laurie Sherman, and Treasurer John Hopkins.

Representative of the many varied and interesting lectures appearing before the Student Forum was Dr. Robert C. Cosbey of Roosevelt University. (Fox)

STUDENT FORUM is a newly organized club designed to interest the entire school body. People are brought to the school to speak on a wide variety of subjects. This year students heard speakers expound on the peace ballot business, literary criticism, and socialism. Each speech was followed by an extensive discussion period during which students aired their own views and were able to ask the speaker questions.

One of the oldest clubs in the school, the RADIO CLUB included about forty members under the direction of Mr. C. F. Rockey. President John Dickinson, K90WN, Vice-President Sandy Thompson, K9ETU, Secretary Nancy McGray, Treasurer Jacob Bernstein, Chief Operator Greg Peterson, K9DCN, and licensed students carried on an active broadcasting program. For the first time there was a class in code and radio theory open to all students interested in amateur short wave communication.

Mr. Rockey, sponsor, makes his presence known as President John Dickinson lectures to Radio Club. (Rau)

With the advent of spring, Boat Club members Bob Bryant, John Mercier, Pat Bryant, Russ Carlstrom, and Scott Walker resumed their aquatic activities. (Mr. Carlstrom)

THE BOAT CLUB, sponsored by Mr. Carlstrom, took a boating jaunt to Lake Geneva and Fox Lake in the fall and a two-day trip to Stark Rock in the spring. Plans for the future include a water ski show and tournament. As many as fifteen members have boats, which they shared with others in the club.

Miss Stepatis conjures up plans for Spanish Club with a group of interested students. (Cherpak)

Amidst a maze of trees, skis and poles, Ski Club enthusiasts look forward to a day of fun on the slopes. (Larson)

As the increased membership of SKI CLUB indicates, more New Trierites flock to the slopes every winter. This year over one hundred enthusiasts participated in the club. The group elected no officers and assembled just when plans were in the offing. The most important event was the February trip to Caberfae, Michigan, for a weekend. The group also took several one-day jaunts to Wilmot during the season. Ski Club welcomes anyone wishing to try his hand at this most popular sport.

The SPANISH CLUB, sponsored this year by Miss Stepaitis, provides the opportunity for the Spanish language to be spoken outside the classroom. The club's main purpose is, however, to interest students in Spanish-American culture. Under the supervision of this year's officers—president, Cecilia Robringer, vice-president, Jim Ruddock, secretary, Nancy Rubenstein, and treasurer, Barb Schraeger—the Spanish Club paid its annual visit to a Mexican restaurant. The club, which has approximately forty members, allows no English to be spoken during the meetings.

Howie Golden, coin chairman, scrutinizes some of the many rare coins on display during a Stamp and Coin Club meeting. (Cherpak)

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Pereira, SAILING CLUB learned about the multitudinous phases of sailing. The members viewed color slides about such things as racing rules, and discussed their problems in sailing. The officers were Lee Barkas, president; George Tregay, vice-president and treasurer, and Kay Obo, secretary.

Creating buying, selling, and trading situations among stamp and coin collectors is the main purpose of the STAMP AND COIN CLUB. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Neuman, films and lectures were held to inform the members of the proper ways of mounting their coins and stamps. One of the highlights of the year was the all-school open house which featured the exhibits of the various members of the club.

The YARN AND THREAD CLUB, sponsored by Mrs. Courtney, provides instruction in knitting for all interested girls. Each winter and spring the best made sweaters are exhibited in the showcases on the main floor. This year's officers were Sharon Schovain, president; Janice Gaarde, vice-president; Sandy Bobbie, secretary-treasurer, and Ellen Goldberg, projects chairman.

GRINNING FROM WITHIN

GIRLS' CLUB CHEERFULLY ADMINISTERED ITS TRADITIONAL RESPONSIBILITIES OF CHARITY AND SERVICE.

A stimulus of fresh ideas combined with the traditional Girls' Club enthusiasm in a wide range of activities demonstrated not only the strength but also the elasticity of the organization. The bi-annual canned foods drive, which Girls' Club sponsored with Tri-Ship, was a clattering success, and the paper-back book store contributed voluminous profits to the Girls' Club scholarship fund. The traditional Friendly Week revolved around "Grinners-from-Withinners," whose identities were the object of a smiling search. An unknown percentage of curious girls asked one another, "Are you a Grinner-from-Withinner?" until eventually all of these lucky girls were no longer unknown. By the time Friendly Week had reached its conclusion, many girls learned that being amiable is easy and worthwhile.

The usual competitive spirit of the New Trier United Fund Drive was changed to one of real charity due to Girls' Club's suggestion that there be no goal set. In this way, students could give freely, with no sense of being pressured into contributing or of having to exceed any predetermined goal.

Tradition at New Trier is perhaps one of the strongest forces in operation, and Girls' Club definitely has been influenced by it. However, tradition can be modified; the innovations on such time-worn customs as the Daddy-Daughter Dinner Dance, the Christmas-time magazine drive, and the spring fashion show demonstrated how much ingenuity can do. In addition to its money-raising and social projects, Girls' Club is to be commended for the constant effort of club groups such as the library, nursery, information, and school office staffs, the volunteer bureau, and the friendly sisters. In a school whose size is becoming more and more unwieldy, Girls' Club graciously helped to relieve the administration of many problems.

TRADITIONAL EMPHASIS ON SERVICE

TRI-SHIP, THE NEW TRIER BOYS' SERVICE ORGANIZATION, FULLY LIVED UP TO ITS RESPONSIBILITIES.

Since Tri-Ship's conception in 1925, service has been its middle name. The organization provided boys for the important services which needed to be performed in the complicated "organization" at New Trier. Boys volunteered their services through their advisories for the various service groups. Efficiency was promoted under service chairman Steve Lazzara, who re-organized many services and created the Gym Corps and the Driver Education Corps which were very helpful to these departments. Under traffic squad chairman Don Behm, the traffic problem in front of New Trier before and after school was alleviated and the information desks, which directed visitors to the school to their destinations, operated well.

This year Tri-Ship donated more money to scholarships than ever before while maintaining payments for renewal of scholarships for the years 1959-1962 totaling $8,700. The club also donated $1,000 to the Tom Nisbet Memorial Fund.

The United Fund Drive, sponsored jointly by the Girls' Club and Tri-Ship, was run experimentally, following the suggestion of Bill Stephens, chairman of Charities. The drive had no specified goal except to promote the idea of "giving." As a result, the drive was considered a great success because the amount which was collected was given willingly and not given because one was pressured into contributing in order to reach a set amount of money.

To the three ideals of Citizenship, Fellowship, and Sportsmanship, for which Tri-Ship was founded, can be added a fourth: Leadership. By coping with Tri-Ship responsibilities, boys learn to live as adults.

"N" CLUB

One of Tri-Ship's oldest clubs is "N" Club, which is composed of the athletes of the school. Members of this social and service organization are all boys who have received a varsity letter for participation in an interscholastic sport. The majority of the 165 boys are seniors.

Meetings were held every other Friday under the leadership of President Tom Nisbet, Vice-President Don Behm, and Secretary-Treasurer Brock Gowdy. At these meetings "N" Club members planned their activities, which included serving at the Girls' Club banquets and discussed improvements for the athletic programs in the school. The club has two dances yearly which are long awaited events. In general "N" Club helps boys become men.

ALTERED APPEARANCE; SAME SPIRIT

Although time has done much to alter the appearance of Service Club, the voluntary spirit of the organization has remained unchanged for over thirty-five years. Such familiar institutions as the white smocks and the Red Cross training course have been eliminated. However, the staff of six girls has continued to maintain their fine record of service. Throughout the year members provided valuable aid for the school in the Nurse's Office. Duties varied from day to day, and from situation to situation; but the most common tasks were running errands, taking temperatures, and treating minor sprains under the careful supervision of the sponsors, Mrs. Schoenenberger and Mrs. Savage. In March, members assisted doctors as they administered and read TB tests for the freshman and junior classes. During the Christmas and Spring Concerts, several volunteers were constantly on hand with the nurses to handle all emergencies. The girls also did most of the Office's clerical work by checking in all absentees and keeping the health records. These volunteer workers have found that they have gained more from their work in Service Club than their mere duties would suggest. They have gained hours of amateur nursing experience and a great deal of personal satisfaction.

STUDENT TUTORS

The Student Tutoring Organization commenced its third year with the original sponsor and founder, Mr. David McKendall, recently returned from a sabbatical in Italy. Composing the senior board were Jan Sulkin, president; Howard Lifshitz, Doug Ewald, Shelly Beman, and Anita Spertus.

The purpose of the organization is to provide students with additional instruction, supplementing daily classes. To insure quality tutoring, the number of tutors was limited to 110, the selection made on a basis of teacher recommendations and grade averages. More than 200 tutees were aided through the organization this year.

A major alteration in the tutoring system concerned the replacement of signed pink permits with a semester pass given to the tutor. Another addition was an eleven-member junior board. Again this year student tutoring proved a boon to teacher, tutor, and pupil; it was fast becoming an important New Trier tradition.

N.T. GUARD

The cliché, "The New Trier Guard is the backbone of the swimming organization," is so often used that it is almost trite. Yet its truth cannot be denied. The guard is a group of boys and girls, interested in swimming pool leadership, which supervises and conducts the entire aquatic program offered. Services include instructing grammar school children every Saturday morning in swimming classes, helping beginning swimmers in gym classes, and helping to conduct after-school general swims, the lifesaving program, and even freshman swimming meets. All members are upperclassmen and must undergo an extensive training course before and during their active participation in the guard.

Of the twenty-seven years the guard has been active, this year's group was the largest with sixty-one members. The head guard was John Yeoman; heading the contingency of girl guards was Katrina Pflaumer.

THEY CHOSE TO ESCAPE

"Drama Club is the largest and oldest club at New Trier and we're proud of it. This year we've had more enthusiastic, hard working, and talented members than ever before." The situation which prompted President Pete Coffield to make this glowing statement was the successful completion of a year of intense activity. The fall activities were largely devoted to helping the drama department publicize the winter play, "Teahouse of the August Moon." Aside from painting and hanging numerous signs, the club ran, as a Halloween party project, a Western gambling saloon with an oriental flavor, and had, as a Dad's Day float, a professionally constructed teahouse, complete with Geisha girls.

Aside from the major productions, the members of Drama Club had several channels into which they could direct their talents. A large portion of this wealth of opportunity was available as the result of the creation, by Miss Jean Anderson, of Theatre Workshop, a series of one night shows, each one usually having a program of three one-act plays. The Workshop naturally afforded for many students the opportunity to direct, perform, and, in general, gain an experience which could not be attained through class work.

In order to increase its members' scope and knowledge of professional performances, Drama Club sponsored three theatre trips to the productions of "Carnival," "Mary, Mary," and "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off." Other highlights of the year were the "Coke Party" for the initiation of new members and the annual Awards Banquet in June.

At an atypical Drama Club meeting, Jane Missner, Dale Gelvan, Becky Rapport, and Paul Brindel argue a point with President Pete Coffield. (Actipes)

"ALLEGRO"

"Allegro," the Performing Arts Workshop production, reached a new height of excellence in experimental theater at New Trier. The show was especially well suited to workshop production because it demanded a successful integration of acting, singing, dancing, and technical artistry. The thoughts and motives of the characters were expressed by a chorus and a verse-speaking choir. The interchange of students playing lead roles was an innovation. Often both an actor and a singer portrayed a single character.

"Allegro" is the life story of Joseph Taylor, Jr., an "ordinary American." It traces his development from a small-town boy to a society physician in Chicago. Interwoven throughout are the conflicting themes of his love for his ambitious wife Jenny and his desire to be a useful doctor.

The high quality which the workshop attained could be ascribed not only to the principal players, but also to the outstanding supporting cast of dancers, singers, and actors.

Members of the Opera dance group play "statues" in a scene depicting Joe Taylor's childhood. (Rau)

TEAHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON

"Pain makes man think
Thought makes man wise
Wisdom makes life endurable . . ."

Thus Sakini (Steve Grossman) stated the theme of the play and began each performance of "The Teahouse of the August Moon."

"Teahouse," presented on December 8 and 9, was a satire on the occupation troops in Okinawa. It concerned the many struggles of an American officer, Captain Fisby, who was trying to establish a democracy in the small village of Tobiki. He was given a Geisha girl named Lotus Blossom as a gift, a present which he regarded as highly undemocratic; he had to contend with the women of the Ladies' League for Democratic Action and had to control the impulses of his impish interpreter Sakini. While he tried to cope with these problems, he was hounded by his despotic superior, Colonel Purdy.

Outstanding in their roles were Steve Grossman as Sakini and Howie Klee, who played the frenzied Fisby. Judy Carrington did an exciting job as the beautiful, fragile Lotus Blossom, as did Scott Lange as the blustery Colonel Purdy. The excellent supporting cast so beautifully conveyed the mood of the play that the audience was reluctant to leave as the curtain came down and Sakini concluded the play:

"May August moon bring gentle sleep."

In order to take advantage of the large number of talented boys, "Julius Caesar" was chosen as the spring play. Shakespeare was neglected as a source of production material until last year because of the extensive concentration required for the long speeches and soliloquies of the main characters. The directors, Mr. Buerger and Dr. Rude, relied on the acting, costuming, and lighting to carry the play, which is one of Shakespeare's greatest spectacles. The major problem was to project successfully the character of Brutus as a capably drawn classical hero in spite of the lack of character development throughout the play.

The plot of "Julius Caesar" concerns the decision of Brutus to become involved in the plot to kill Caesar. After the deed is done, Brutus foolishly allows Marc Antony to make a funeral speech about Caesar. Antony turns the people against Brutus and the other conspirators. Too late Brutus realizes that he killed a man he loved and revered, a man worthy of his position as dictator. With this knowledge, he runs on his sword and dies.

Unknown to many, the "Little Bit Fishy" board is also one of the most aquatic groups in the school: Ann Ryerson, Allan Stern, Larry Kreger, Sally MacKinnon, Caddy Salinger, Anne Murray, Peter Clark, Scott Evans, Tom Farrell, and Betsy Salzman. (Cherpak)

EXPERIMENTAL THEATRE

Aside from the major drama productions, a full schedule of one-night shows was presented in M182. The one-act plays, as exemplified by "Picnic on the Battlefield," were often a challenge to the audience as well as to the students performing. They were, for the most part, exponents of a new era in writing: Theater of the Absurd. The second annual "Little Bit Fishy" was presented on June 6th and 7th. The two evenings of superlative satire were anticipated by many as the perfect finish to a year of varied entertainment.

BAUBLES, BANGLES, NEW STAGE BAND

NEW INNOVATIONS AND VARIED PROGRAMS CONTINUALLY PROVIDED A SOURCE OF ENJOYMENT FOR THE STUDENT BODY.

The Music Department witnessed a sharp acceleration of tempo. Under the leadership of Dr. Peterman, it presented the school with programs of increased difficulty, and also introduced several innovations, exemplified by the newly organized stage band which prepared special numbers, usually swing music, and performed them outside the school.

The musical year commenced with the Creative Arts Workshop production of "Allegro." The show was a first of its kind at New Trier, for never before had both an actor and a singer been used to portray a single role. The presence of the entire chorus and the use of a speaking choir also contributed to make this a show of unusual qualities. In December, the traditional Christmas Festival was held. Even here, however, there was a hint of change, as evidenced by the use of trumpeters around the balcony of the gym in the opening number.

With the advent of spring came the opera, "Kismet." According to Dr. Peterman, it was the most difficult production the opera group had ever undertaken. Spring was also the occasion for several other important performances. A series of scholarship concerts was presented by the senior music groups to raise funds for those deserving graduates interested in a musical career. Another opportunity for graduates was the Commencement Concert which gave outstanding seniors a final chance to perform. The final musical event was the annual Spring Concert, in which all groups participated. The combined efforts of all the music groups and their directors resulted in another year of outstanding musical productions well received by the entire student body.

A SPARKLING TOUCH OF RAHADLAKUM

Sheilah Bernstein and Ken Wright reveal the exciting properties of Rahladlakum. (Rau)

The opera group's spring production of "Kismet" was its most ambitious effort of the group's long history of "ambitious efforts." The musical "Arabian Nights" offered challenges for every aspect of production. Borodin's melodies were of a difficult operatic caliber, rarely attempted at a high school level. All participants, however, were determined to meet the rigorous demands of his music. Inspired by one of the best orchestras in years, the chorus achieved its traditional high standards while the leads generally gave excellent professional performances. Particularly outstanding was Pam Eldredge, who in four performances continually captured the audience's delight and respect with her beautiful voice and excellent understanding of her part.

Staging was extremely difficult, especially in mob scenes such as the Bazaar of the Caravans. The girls had to be double cast, but because of the many male chorus parts, the boys were able to perform all nights. After the brilliant Rahadlakum campaign, ticket sales perked up and resulted in a complete sell-out all nights. A matinee, the second in the history of the opera, had nearly a full house.

The show posed a variety of technical challenges to the hard-working stage crew members who found it difficult to create the complicated sets necessary to make Baghdad come to life. Nevertheless, the genius of Mrs. Carol Gill, the technical director, made the show one of the most beautiful ever seen on the New Trier stage. Meeting every challenge, "Kismet" emerged as a sparkling success. The combined effort of casts, crews, and faculty produced an opera which fully measured up to former triumphs.

25 YEARS — OR WAS IT 24?

The year of ". . . And One to Grow On!" proved to be the most active year in Lagniappe's long history of twenty-five productions (or was it twenty-four?). Lagniappe '63 kept all participants working on many new innovations from June through February including a small but explosive Dad's Day float, Lagniappe publicity buttons, the show record and the much desired symbol of Klass—a silver lamé show curtain. All of this activity was secondary to the job of writing a fast-paced original musical revue, auditioning over 600 students, choreographing the many dance numbers, and rehearsing the excellent chorus and acting groups. During the eight-week production period the visual aspects of the show took shape. The stage crew built more than a dozen set pieces that ranged from a monstrous twelve-foot pink cake to a gigantic portrait of Ann Margaret Olson. When the production deadline arrived, the superlative orchestra literally started the show off with a bang that lifted the curtain on a glittering pink and silver anniversary "cake-walk." Throughout the show three unexpected guests tried in vain to reveal and then to detract from the fact that the anniversary celebration was a year premature. In the finale they achieved their goal by revealing the bad news to the cast and the twenty-four Lagniappe queens, then proceeded to cheer up everyone by exploding a bomb of N_2O inside the ill-fated anniversary cake. The revue contained many show stoppers but the Dick and Jane number never ceased to capture the audience's laughter and applause.

ARTISTS' COLONY: FOURTH FLOOR

PAINT-SPATTERED AND BE-SMOCKED STUDENTS CREATED PAINTINGS, SCULPTURES, JEWELRY, AND TEXTILES OF IMAGINATIVE AND EXCELLENT DESIGN.

The art department at New Trier advocates creative rather than technical proficiency. Art is ideally an extension of the humanities and is thus stressed as a cultural subject. The aim of the varied courses, which range from jewelry and ceramics to drawing and painting, is to develop creative talent and foster an appreciation of the visual arts. Group projects are usually assigned in the beginning art courses; upperclassmen are often allowed and encouraged to work independently. The entire four-year program, however, is loosely knit and designed to stimulate the student to work on his own.

Besides the standard studio courses, the art department offers a lecture course, Great Arts, taught by the department head, Mr. Holland. In addition, several art collections by such Chicagoland artists as Ralph Harvey and Royal Ho were secured by Mr. Holland for display on the second floor. The exhibits were often exciting and interesting; they were always controversial.

The annual student art show was presented after spring vacation. Paintings and drawings which were done in a variety of media comprised the largest part of the exhibit. Also on display were jewelry and ceramics. The collection was certainly a success (due to participating students in all four classes) with special praise due senior Rich Tanzmann, whose painting received the award "Best in the Show."

CHAMPIONSHIP STATUS AGAIN and AGAIN

THE VICTORIES OF THE DEBATE TEAM BROUGHT HONOR TO THE ENTIRE SCHOOL.

The only Illinois school that participated in every state debate league, New Trier proved its debate team's strength and ability by its outstanding record of victories. The year's debate tournaments were based on the proposition, "Resolved: That the United States should promote a Common Market for the Western Hemisphere."

Outranking 29 schools, New Trier's varsity debate team captured the National Forensic League State Debate Championship, and senior Roberta Pollack earned championship status in the NFL girls' extemporaneous speaking contest. For team and individual records, New Trier was awarded the NFL State Sweepstakes Championship for the sixth year in a row. These accomplishments entitled varsity team members George Rosen and Roberta Pollack to attend the National Speech Tournament in Houston, Texas. As well as winning the Illinois State High School District contest in Individual Events, New Trier debaters attained the championship position in the Metropolitan Debate Union, an association of Illinois and Indiana schools, for the eighth year in a row. New Trier achieved first place in the Illinois State Normal University Cross Examination Debate, a gruelling test of quick thinking, and also placed first in both divisions in the Blue Island tournament. Appearing for the third year in the WBBM-TV debate series, "Rebuttal," N.T.'s debate team ranked among the top five teams.

Fifty students participated in the year's debate program of 30 tournaments. As members of either the beginning, junior-varsity, or varsity team, all the debaters had the opportunity of gaining competition experience. Members of the debate team benefited from the far reaching purposes of debate. They learned methods of reasoning, persuasion, and argumentation in class, so that they could better communicate their ideas.

THE 3-YEAR-OLD GIANT

THE ENORMOUS STAFF OF WNTH SERVED THE ENTIRE TOWNSHIP AS WELL AS THE STUDENT BODY.

In a manner reminding one of a Cecil B. DeMille movie with a cast of thousands, WNTH, with a staff of slightly under one hundred (the largest radio station staff in the country), broadcast over 1,100 hours of programming this year. WNTH began broadcasting on October 1st under the direction of the Co-Station Managers, Robert Evers and John Dickinson, and celebrated its third birthday unceremoniously on December 10.

With its new United Press International leased-wire teletype, the WNTH news staff was able to give four newscasts a day: the news staff was finally able to hold up its head proudly and proclaim that it did not have to get news from any Chicago newspaper all year.

With the combined efforts of the news and special staffs, the station was able to broadcast the election returns in November, the Winnetka Village Caucus meeting in January and the subsequent meeting in February, and the referendum returns in March. Several other special broadcasts of interest, including the graduation ceremony, were presented.

The sports staff was on hand at all major sporting events with play by play, stroke by stroke, and whack by whack descriptions of N.T. football, basketball, swimming, and baseball (not to mention wrestling and gymnastics). A notorious pop-tune show known as the Pre-Game Show was tacked on to all sports broadcasts. At first, the sponsors objected, but they finally graciously bowed to the decision of the Station Managers.

A trend toward more WNTH produced programming could be seen this year as was evidenced by nearly three-fourths of the second semester shows such as Student Forum, WNTH Special, Matinee of Music, and New Trier Podium. Foreign language programming in German, French, Chinese and Russian was also begun. Although tapes from the National Association of Educational Broadcasters made up the bulk of outside programming, tapes from such varied sources as the U.N., CBS, New York Stock Exchange, and Argonne National Laboratory were broadcast.

WNTH program listings were carried regularly in the local papers, and erratically in the New Trier News. The station succeeded in getting into Chicagoland FM Guide, and received a large write-up in the Chicago Daily News. Partially as a result of this article, several schools in Illinois and Wisconsin turned to WNTH for advice in starting stations of their own.

Larry Hotz broadcasts the U.P.I. wire news while Tom Foster spots and Kerry Frumkin lends a critical ear. (Actipes)

When a building grows larger, and its main functions become centrally located, certain areas outside of this axis may be isolated. Thus has the Technical Building of New Trier slowly evolved into an independent portion of the school, a region unknown but to some few experienced students.

Penetrating the dark, narrow corridor, an unwary visitor may be somewhat unsettled by sounds of high-pitched excitement from T2c. A general cry of "Playback" is his introduction to a different New Trier elite, the Playback board.

Carol Levin, editor of the record, claimed that "Playback is a yearbook for people who can't read." The sounds of the school were recorded throughout the year, from assemblies to opera, from Lagniappe to sports events. The intent of Playback 1963 was to reduce jokes and hall chatter and to emphasize New Trier's musical and dramatic productions, thereby creating a record which would appeal to most students who participated in the various extra-curricular events.

Three major committees were organized last September, working steadily until the May distribution date. Caddy Salinger, head of script, joined technical director John Rex and Jeanne Magill, head of publicity, to coordinate script and sound into an aural publication representative of the entire student population.

Jeanne Magill, Dave Bess, Sue Braun, and Rick Paul were properly amused at Carol Levin's attempt to read the thin Playback tape which yielded no hints as to its contents. (Gordon)

NO LONGER ESOTERIC

New Trier's fine arts magazine, Inklings, displayed excellence in quality, originality, and diversity in 1963. The magazine staff dropped the former esoteric air by holding open literary meetings in which students from all classes were encouraged to exhibit their own writing, art work, and photography for critical analysis and discussion. The effort succeeded, the Inklings meetings were always crowded—even though refreshments were not served.

Editors for each art form showed the extent of the diversity. Peter Clark, Sarah Vanderwicken, and Caddy Salinger, literary editors; Gordy Rosberg and Janie Curtis, art editors; and James Rosenberg, photo editor, comprised the editorial staff. Photography and drawings in the new magazine were not correlated to the writing and there was no central theme, which gave increased freedom to the choice of all forms. In addition to a freedom of artistic choice, the modes of reproduction, including a combination of typography and half-tone (overprinting), pleased the artistic temperament verbally and visually.

Sarah Vanderwicken, Peter Clark, and Caddy Salinger conferred often on writing submitted to the fine arts magazine. (Rau)

PRAECO

This year was the tenth anniversary of Praeco. The occasion was celebrated with the introduction of an additional sister to the nine Muses of classical Greek poetry. The largest language magazine in the school, Praeco's fifty pages were filled with contributions from all Latin and Greek students. Trying to create a magazine much like New Yorker in tone, Praeco made use of extensive art work, as well as serious poems and stories.

This year's staff was headed by editors Chuck Cecil, Pete Wilhelm, Jeffrie Hirt, and art editors Ellie Samuelson and Jeff Hubbell. Praeco is sponsored by Dr. Drake.

LE FLAMBEAU

Work on Le Flambeau began early, and, with the help of a willing staff, finished early. The editors, Mop Steinberg and Anita Spertus, were aided by a small editorial staff. The rest of the work was divided among various committees: typing, layout, art, and selling. In this way several people had a chance to work on the magazine. Stylistically the contributions were imaginative and showed a great deal of originality, especially in the field of philosophical poetry.

SCHREIBEREI

In giving German students an opportunity to read and write their language in a medium other than a textbook, the German magazine, Schreiberei, successfully serves its purpose. The editorial staff of the magazine consisted of one student from each of the German classes. These students collected the writing done by their classmates and helped arrange it for final publication. Poems, riddles, jokes, short stories, and essays written by first-year students, as well as by those in their fourth year, provided the publication with a diversity that was enjoyable to all German students.

DE TODO UN POCO

As another medium through which students could express themselves artistically, the Spanish magazine, De Todo un Poco, was comprised of original poems, essays, and short stories. Written by interested Spanish students, these literary achievements represented observations and thoughts on the meaning and purpose of life. Essentially the ideas centered on three important topics: life, death, and love. Writing was limited to these basic topics, making De Todo un Poco a more specialized magazine than those of previous years. The staff enthusiastically tackled the job of compiling the magazine with more seriousness than in the past. The result—a thoughtful and unique magazine.

LIVING COLOR, QUALITY TOO

N.T. STUDENTS SPENT FRIDAY AFTERNOONS IMMERSED IN THE PAGES OF THE "NEWS."

News Fridays were the ones when study halls and classes were knee-deep in large printed sheets of paper. If an assembly fell on a Friday, the rustle of the New Trier News was the most intelligible sound in the auditorium. Breaking an all-time record, the News was published on six consecutive weeks. Weeks without school-Fridays and weeks following vacations were non-News-weeks, but the News managed to publish 27 regular issues. An additional Special Freshman issue was published for the amusement of parents visiting the school on Freshman Night.

The year's most glorious touch was the issue printed in "living color." On the first page were two pictures in color of both of the gorgeously arrayed "Kismet" casts; inside was a reproduction of a New Trier-owned masterpiece by Ivan Albright. The color process is expensive and was an innovation used to highlight this greatest of all issues. This "Klass" issue was eight pages long and of the highest quality both in writing and photography.

The News staff by no means confined itself to publishing the weekly rag. Its most official outside activity was producing the Seventh Annual Gridiron Show, a sarcastic sweep of comedy, performed at the Communications Banquet on May 9 and enjoyed because of its potent in-jokes.

The effect of the absence (during part of the year) of Mr. Robert "King" Boyle was partially offset by the temporary sponsorship of Mr. Tom Dorfman, student teacher and one-time editor of the News.

A 35 mm. LOOK AT N.T.'S WORLD

NEW TECHNIQUES AND ATTITUDES MADE THE 1963 BOOK DIFFERENT FROM ALL THOSE PRECEDING IT.

The iconoclastic introductory photo essay of ECHOES 1963 emphasizes photography as an art, rather than merely a useful technical process. The pictures were not captioned in order to let them speak for themselves, and pertinent quotations from many kinds of literary works explained the aspect of New Trier life with which each section of "The World of New Trier" was concerned. Inspiration for this presentation came from Edward Steichen's published collection of photographs, The Family of Man. Layout ideas as well as the use of photographers' by-lines for each two-page spread came from several national magazines.

In spite of the staff's great interest in the photo essay, the rest of the book still had to be published. Planning began in May, 1962, even before ECHOES 1962 was delivered to the school. The page layouts were completed during the summer, and the photography and photo essay work began in earnest during the first days of school in the fall. Pictures were taken, painstakingly identified, and their names carefully noted in the 4,475-name student index. Copy and captions were written, typed, proofread and sent to the printers. Photographs had to be developed and the best ones chosen, printed, cropped for the correct size and proportion, and sent to the engravers. More than 500 engraving plates are in ECHOES 1963. Each one cost from $5 to $50, depending upon size and special treatment which might be required.

Although ECHOES activity centered mainly around school, there were several excursions which helped give the staff a better idea of what could be done in yearbook work. Staff members attended a yearbook workshop at Loyola Academy, and a lecture on "The Art of Seeing Things" by the well known photographer, Arthur Spiegel, at North Shore Country Day School. Two photographers attended a communications workshop at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale last summer. But the favorite excursion, of course, was the annual trip to the printer in Iowa City, Iowa, to check the final page proofs and to watch ECHOES 1963 go to press.

SUBURBAN LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

After a five-year period of servitude, New Trier threw off the yoke of Evanston oppression in a season finale that determined the Suburban League champion.

The success of the varsity could not be attributed to individual stars, as, in the words of Coach Aschenbach, "Never have I seen such a team effort from such a highly spirited group of boys." The Indians started their season slowly with a rather sloppy loss to Hinsdale and a close win over Waukegan. They then seemed to gain momentum, their only other mishap coming in the form of a muddy tie with Highland Park when the Indian front wall was riddled with injuries.

The climax of the season was, of course, the final game with Evanston. The Indians entered the game as fourteen-point underdogs to the undefeated Wildkits, who were at that time ranked first in Illinois. Evanston scored the first touchdown late in the first quarter, but New Trier stormed back with a beautiful forty-yard pass from tailback John Smart to end Randy Mercein. The turning point of the game, however, came in the second quarter when the Indians made a terrific stand on their six-yard line.

In the second half, the Indians put on a beautiful exhibition of ball control football. The brunt of the attack was borne by pint-sized fullback Andy Hoel, who led the Indians to two sustained scoring drives. The final gun showed New Trier 20-7 victors.

The Indians were led by co-captains Rick Buesch and Brian Donegan. "Chief" Tom Weatherford received an all-state rating at tackle while fullback John Roche and Randy Mercein received honorable mention recognition. Tackle John Baylor was unanimously awarded the Edward V. Kasselberger Memorial Trophy signifying leadership and sportsmanship.

J. V.'S BALANCE VARSITY RECORD

The J. V.'s started a mediocre season by losing their first four games. They did, however, come back strongly to win their last three contests, highlighted by a 33-0 romp over Morton in their finale. This win gave them a first division finish.

The team's difficulties occurred for two reasons. First, many of the teams with which the J. V.'s competed mixed their varsity and J. V. players. Also, the job of the Junior Varsity is to train players so they can compete on the varsity level. Then, some of the outstanding J. V.'s were switched to varsity, leaving Coach Klein with gaps in his lineup.

Bruce Crawford and Nip Duncan were the co-captains. The offense was led by the expert passing of Mike Fenton, but a tightened up defense proved the team's greatest strength late in the season.

SOPHS LACK SPEED

The Sophomores had a very inconsistent season. After a defeat, they would bounce back and win a game. Their play showed team effort, but a lack of team speed held the Ponies to third place in the Suburban League.

The Ponies reached a peak in the Morton game, which they won 19-0. Their defense was excellent in that game, permitting the Mustangs' offense a scanty net gain of eighteen yards.

Led by Captain Dan Gaber, the Sophomore squad compiled a Suburban League record of 4-3, and an over-all record of 4-4. The Ponies concentrated on a strong running attack, although their inconsistent passing occasionally paid off. Their defense tightened up considerably late in the season, enabling the team to play a good game against Evanston. The only difference between the two teams was speed. Twice Evanston backs got past the Pony defensive secondary, and unfortunately this decided the outcome.

The coaches were Mr. Lauer, Mr. B. James, Mr. Zukowski, and Mr. Galbraith. Head coach Lauer said, "They're a team with an unbelievable amount of spirit." Since the Ponies worked very hard and never let up, next year they will be a valuable asset to the varsity team.

FROSH HAVE A STRONG SEASON

Spirit and determination were the key factors contributing to the Frosh "A's" fine record. They won their first six games, three times coming from behind during the second half. The team missed winning the Suburban League Championship by one point, as Evanston edged them out, 21-20. In this game the "A" eleven returned from a half-time deficit of 21-6 to score two touchdowns and to hold the Wildkits scoreless. Head Coach Malinsky said, "They played a great game but were beat by a team of greater speed and size."

Although the team lacked passing, their strong ground attack was exceedingly successful. This attack was led by fullback John MacArthur, who scored 81 points and averaged an excellent five yards a carry.

The Freshman "B" squad was not as successful. An exceedingly small team, they utilized a strong air attack, the bulk of which rested on the pin-point passing of co-captain Tommy Harrison. Coaches Funkhouser, Lill, and Lindley were very satisfied with the 3-3 record the "B's" compiled.

STATE CHAMPIONS AGAIN

The second season of soccer at New Trier exploded the budding myth that the Warriors needed to import players via the American Field Service. The varsity compiled a 7-1-3 record and tied for the state championship with Oak Park.

The Warriors got off to a shaky start, winning only one of their first four games. They then seemed to gain momentum as they vanquished seven of their last eight opponents and prepared for a championship play-off with Oak Park. The Huskies declined New Trier's play-off invitation, however, on the grounds that it was against Suburban League policy to play soccer so late in the year.

The Warriors scored a total of twenty-three goals to their opponents' eight. They were led by junior Mike Center, who scored eleven goals. Senior Bill Singsen, second high scorer, contributed five goals. Center and Singsen as well as junior Steve Scher were selected to the first all-state squad. Juniors Pete Hague and Pete Kiel were placed on the second team while junior Steve Fields, sophomore Tom Watson and captain Randy Alexander received honorable mention recognition.

In apposition, the Sophomore Soccer Team suffered a rather disappointing season. The Papooses won only one game, losing four and tying one.

The 1962 Varsity Cross Country team returned to the glory that was New Trier Cross Country, compiling an undefeated dual meet season and copping first place in the Suburban League. The Harriers also came in first in their district and third in the state meet, two points behind second place Evanston whom they had earlier defeated in dual meet competition.

The success of the harriers can be attributed to the team's great depth. Captain Del Mitchell led the team with seven first places and in one meet came within two seconds of the New Trier course record. Juniors Gordy Segersten and Roo Carson were Mitchell's closest competitors. Both were among the top fifteen in the state meet. Sophomore Ted Ferris also saw frequent varsity duty.

The sophomore team placed second in the Suburban League behind Waukegan. Ferris broke the sophomore course record before he was moved up to the varsity. When Ferris was absent the team was led by sophomore Ed Jamieson and freshman John Davis.

Gordy Segersten elbows Captain Del Mitchell out of first place in the Niles meet. (Actipes)

BALANCE A STRONG POINT FOR THINCLADS

New Trier, perennial powerhouse in track, swept to another fine season as their impressive record indicates. The team, with head coach Mr. Ben Almaguer and assistant coaches Mr. Pete Frantzen, Mr. James McFadzean, and Mr. Gerald Kates, had its share of individual stars while maintaining good balance.

Outstanding performances for the team were in distance running events. Junior John Laidlaw climaxed an excellent season by setting a new Suburban League half-mile record with a time of 1:56.9 in the League Meet at Oak Park. Milers Del Mitchell and Roo Carson ran consistently well, their best times being 4:31 and 4:33 respectively. The mile relay team of Gregg Syfert, Brian Ferguson, Laidlaw, and Bob Timm turned in a time of 3:42.4 for a Morton Big Ten meet record. The team was especially strong in the quarter-mile event. Along with Syfert, Timm, and Laidlaw, juniors Doug Hunter and John Moulding performed well. The half-mile relay was composed of sprinters Moulding, Rich Robinson, Paul Mandel, and Neal Winick. Winick was also the team's number one 50-yard dash man, his best time being 5.5.

The team was also strong in the field events: pole vault, shot put, broad jump, and high jump. Exceptional pole vaulters were Tom Paul, Dave Fullerton, and Nip Duncan. Excellent shot putters were Randy Mercein and Marty Bridges. Bob Guelich and Andy Hoel were the team's best broad jumpers, and sophomore Skip Spanjer performed well in the high jump.

The outlook for next year's varsity is bright due to an abundance of talent on this year's Frosh-Soph squad. Some freshmen likely to see varsity action in the future are John Struggles, a hurdler; John Davis, a half-miler; miler Bob Blackwell, pole vaulter John Holmes, and Bill Berkenfield, who has already high jumped six feet. Talented sophomores were runners Ted Ferris and Fritz Newnhuyse, and broad jumper Jim Walton.

Freshman Dave Porter passes the baton to senior Brian Ferguson while practicing for an upcoming meet. (Rau)

Alone in enemy territory, Bob Magnuson's only support seems to come from the N.T. rooters in the background. (Actipes)

The varsity baseketball team became the pride of New Trier this winter by winning the first undisputed Suburban League crown in the school's history. The Cagers finished with an overall record of 17-4, while in Suburban League play they were 13-1. The Indians, coached by Mr. Nisbet and Mr. Lewis, were consistently ranked among the top sixteen teams in the state.

New Trier's stiffest opposition came from Waukegan and Proviso East, who placed second and third respectively. The Indians did not have as easy a season as their impressive record might indicate. One-point victories over Oak Park and Morton East were a tribute to the balance of the League. Speculation on the possibility of an undefeated League record was abruptly stopped after the Indians' meeting with a fired-up Proviso East team at Maywood, who dealt the Indians an embarrassing twenty-five-point loss. The sign of a good team is if it can bounce back from such a defeat. New Trier did just that as they outlasted Waukegan for the second time the following night. As a result of that win, the Suburban League Trophy now rests in the New Trier trophy case. An extremely successful season ended in disappointment when a much-improved Waukegan team defeated the Indians in the Waukegan Regional Fnals of the State Tournament.

The team was led by captain Tom Nisbet and senior Bob Magnuson. Nisbet received all-state recognition at guard, while Magnuson was an all-Suburban League forward. At the annual banquet, Cliff Nelson was elected next year's captain.

The brilliance of New Trier's finest basketball season was dimmed when, on April 7, Mr. Tom Nisbet, New Trier's greatest basketball coach, passed away.

Mr. Nisbet came to this country from Scotland at the age of five. His family settled in Harvey, Illinois. Mr. Nisbet attended Thornton High and was captain of the 1938-39 basketball team at the University of Illinois. He then returned to Thornton to coach until 1957, when he moved to New Trier to become the Indians' head coach. As a coach, Mr. Nisbet was known for his quiet acceptance of both victory and defeat. Yet he had a fine record—the year before he became head coach, New Trier took 6th in the Suburban League; the last two years they have been league champions. No finer tribute can be given a coach than this record.

JAYVEES PREPARE JUNIORS FOR NEXT YEAR'S VARSITY

Despite a losing record this season, the Junior Varsity fulfilled its purpose, according to Mr. Dave Dickman, J.V. coach. He went on to say that the J.V.'s did a good job in keeping the varsity hustling and in good shape. They did so in scrimmages on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, followed by a scrimmage of their own on Fridays and league games on Saturday.

The team consisted of eleven boys, ten juniors and senior Joe Wagner. The J.V.'s finished with a record of five wins and ten losses, although they were 5-7 in the Suburban League. High scorer on the team was Roy Johnson, a left-handed guard. Centers Wagner and Quentin Johnson specialized in defense. The team suffered from a lack of height, however, and their front line did not perform as well as expected. The team's greatest asset was its four guards: Roy Johnson, Jim Rohr, Tim Loos, and Tom Newman. Coach Dickman named Newman as the boy who was most improved over the course of the season, and cited Rohr as an excellent floor leader who also maintained a good scoring average.

Another purpose of the Junior Varsity team is to provide the talent for the next year's varsity positions. Coach Dickman named Rohr, Roy Johnson, Frank Fowle, and Will Lenfestey as strong candidates for the squad.

PONIES HAVE GOOD POTENTIAL BUT A SO-SO RECORD

Center Skip Spanjer hooks in two points for the Ponies in their 57-51 triumph over Highland Park. (Rau)

The Sophomore basketball team had a relatively poor season by New Trier standards. The Ponies won six games but suffered eight losses in Suburban League play. Coach Melvin Esarey felt that the team's weakness was basically that the boys didn't function well as a team, despite several occasions on which individuals performed well.

The Sophs had disappointments, games they could have won, but they had some good nights too. The Ponies started off well with an impressive victory over LaGrange. Later they scored a win over Morton East by holding their opponents to only twenty-five points. The boys suffered a letdown at the end of the season by losing in the final seconds to Evanston and in overtime to Morton East, 47-40

The team had good potential in the persons of Don Rindfleisch and Joel Schachtel. Rindfleisch led the team in scoring with 149 points, and also led in rebounds. Schachtel scored 127 points and proved himself a good ball-handler. Steve Carlstedt led the defensive chores for the Ponies, and Skip Spanjer specialized in rebounding. Coach Esarey named Bill Bronner, Ed Jamieson, and Ted Ferris as boys who showed great improvement during the season. He felt that Rindfleisch, Schachtel, Carlstedt, Spanjer, Ferris, and Steve Antrim have a good chance to see varsity action in the future.

FROSH TEAMS SHINE WITH 26-2 COMBINED RECORD

The Freshman basketball teams, coached by Mr. Jerry Morgan and assistant Mr. John Galbraith, did far better than was expected of them this season, winning twenty-six of twenty-eight games. The "A" and "B" teams compiled 13-2 and 13-0 records respectively.

Despite their fine record, the freshman "A" team finished second in the Suburban League. One of the team's two defeats came at the hands of Waukegan, the squad that was later to become league champion. Because of sickness, the "A" team was forced to play the Waukegan game with only four of their five regular starters, and was defeated, 45-40. A victory against Waukegan would have meant a share of the league Championship. The team was hampered by sickness among the regulars several times during the year.

The Freshman "A" team's greatest strength was on offense, particularly the front line, led by 6-6 Larry Rosensweig at center. The team played pattern basketball, often winning by large margins. Coach Morgan cited Rosensweig, John Holmes, Steve Yates, and Bill Berkenfield as offensive standouts and good prospects for the future.

The Freshman "B" team went undefeated in thirteen games, thus doing the best of any of this year's basketball teams. This squad, also concentrating on offense, ran into their stiffest opposition against Proviso East, winning by one and two-point margins.

AN OFF YEAR— SWIMMERS TAKE SECOND IN STATE

The tension of the race begins long before the starting gun sounds and stopwatch begins its relentless cycle. (Rau)

Finishing the season as second in the state, New Trier's varsity swimming team performed well. New Trier was defeated by Hinsdale in the state meet, but being second was quite an accomplishment. Much of last year's state championship team had graduated and with the restrictions imposed by the Suburban League as to the amount of practice time allowed, the teams this season had difficulty in getting into top form. Also, with Coach Dave Robertson hospitalized during a few crucial weeks of the season because of a back injury, the teams were deprived of his valuable assistance. In Coach Robertson's absence, Coach Ray Essick and diving Coach Dick Becker had greater responsibility in providing New Trier with the finest possible teams.

In the Suburban League standings, the varsity team was runner-up to Evanston. Outstanding seniors on the team were the three co-captains: Bill Burson, Jon Holland, and Jack Kiefer. "Burson and Kiefer maintained a consistent excellence over their four years at New Trier," Coach Robertson said. "Each one placed in the state meet all four years that they were here." This year the Ned Schroeder Memorial trophy was awarded to Jon Holland. This trophy is awarded annually to the graduating swimmer who best exhibits qualities of leadership, responsibility, and sportsmanship. Other excellent graduating swimers were Vic Banks, who placed in the state meet both years he attended New Trier, and Brent Bersbach, who was runner-up for the last two years in diving in the state meet. Outstanding performances by juniors were turned in by Phil Chase, who was second in the state in both the 50-yard and the 100-yard free-style competition, and Steve Shapiro, who was second in the state in the 100-yard breast stroke and who broke the varsity record for that event. Juniors Tom Hendrey and Jim Props both performed well, each placing in two events in the state meet.

The sophomore team finished second in the Suburban League. The strength of the team was built around co-captains Tom Gray, Gerry Miller, and Tom Peck. With record-breaking points, Doug Todd became the first sophomore in history to become the state diving champion.

The freshman team won the Suburban League championship. Freshman Ralph Todhunter led off the free-style relay in the state meet and did an excellent overall job. This year's freshman team, ranking with the best New Trier has ever had, broke every freshman New Trier record but one.

Though this season went well, next year looks even more promising. According to Coach Robertson, "We have three strong years behind us." With so many lettermen returning in the fall, New Trier may once again rule the roost of swimming.

The varsity wrestling team enjoyed one of their best seasons in recent years, climaxing their campaign by a fourth place finish in the State Meet. Mr. Ken Wellington was head coach and Mr. Eugene Cichowski assistant coach.

The team was especially outstanding in the lower weight classes: 95, 112, and 120 pounds. Senior Don Behm ended one of the best individual efforts ever seen in any sport at New Trier. He compiled a 65-2 record over a period of three years, winning 44 straight and twenty of twenty this year. Co-captain Behm, a 120-pounder, captured his second straight state title, with little trouble, by defeating a La Grange opponent, 14-7. The other co-captain, Pete Diltz, performed exceptionally in the 112-pound class. Diltz recorded a 21-2 mark, both losses coming at the hands of a Deerfield wrestler, the eventual state champ. At Champaign, Diltz scored three consecutive shutouts before being defeated 7-4 to take second place. Sophomore Don Joseph, at 95 pounds, took third in the state when he lost to a Proviso East wrestler whom he had already defeated earlier in the season. Joseph finished with a 20-2 record.

127-pounder Duncan Stuart was named as the boy who showed the most improvement, and he received the Dads' Club award. Sophomore Barry Cook at 133 performed well for the varsity. Senior Dave Reiter qualified for the State Meet, and co-captain-elect Tom Factor would have gone downstate had he not injured his shoulder. The team also lost the services of junior Bruce Gordon, who suffered a neck injury.

Mr. Bill Turner, coach of the sophomore team, named captain Dave Knox as a standout at 154 pounds. Also named were Bob Siebel, Bruce Rosenberg, and Terry Light. The team's gradual decline at the end of the season was due in part to Barry Cook's promotion to the varsity.

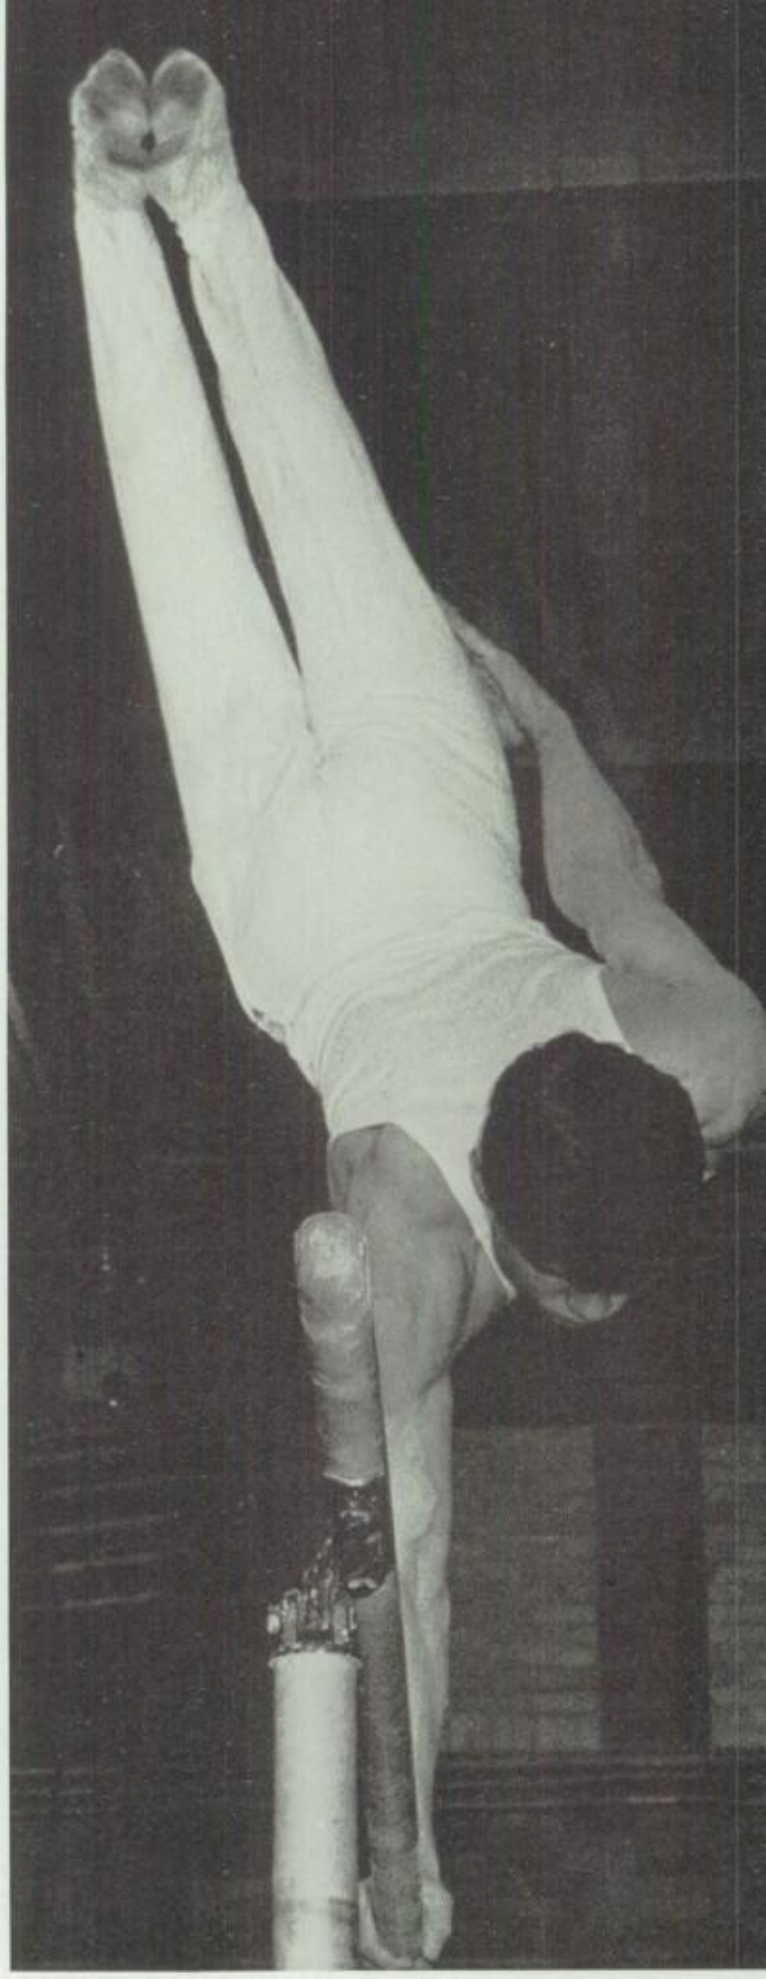
INEXPERIENCE AND INJURIES PLAGUE VARSITY GYMNASTS

Hampered throughout the year by injuries and inexperience, the varsity gymnastics team had a very troubled season. Winning only two of eleven meets, the varsity tied at fourth with Waukegan in the Suburban League.

Foremost among those lost through injuries was Chuck Bernstein, co-captain and the only letterman from last year's squad, who was disabled for the entire regular season until the district gymnastics tournament. Junior Gary Verne, who performed on the rings, was incapable of participation during much of the season. Partly as a result of injuries, and partly because most of last year's Suburban League co-champion team had graduated, the team was composed largely of juniors. As a result, Head Coach Joe Giallombardo explained, the team suffered from inexperience and fell down in competition with older, more experienced teams. The highest level of performance of a gymnast is naturally reached during the boy's senior year, he added.

Despite the poor record, there were several outstanding individual efforts. Most outstanding was senior co-captain John Hooker, who competed on both rings and the parallel bars. He scored more points than any other team member while capturiog the most first place titles (five on the parallel bars, six on the rings). He also was the only one of seven New Trier qualifiers to place in the state meet. Junior Perry Miller, who performed on the trampoline and in tumbling, as well as junior trampolinist Ray Walker, also were outstanding. Three sophomores—Paul Graf, Roy Beavers, and Pat Rosser—participated in varsity competition in the district meet.



John Hooker, co-captain of the gymnastics team, demonstrates the rarely perfected one-arm stand on the parallel bars. (Fox)

The sophomore team, coached by Earl Schabel, "really outdid themselves" according to Coach Giallombardo, as they were undefeated in eleven meets and won the Suburban League championship. The freshman gymnastics team was also strong. With the great number of able and experienced juniors and with added strength from this year's sensational sophomore sophomore team, next year's gymnastics team will be a major contender for the Suburban League and state championships.

PITCHERS' FINE E.R.A.'S BRING EARLY SEASON VICTORIES

Although in third place at press time, the varsity baseball squad had cause for disappointment. The team posted a Suburban League record of five wins and four losses with an overall mark of seven and eight. All four of the Indian losses in League competition were by one run.

The team did not have a great deal of success in early spring games, losing three out of four to teams from the Chicago area. The Indians were ready for the opening of the Suburban League season, however, as they quickly moved into first place with four straight victories, including a double win over Niles East. The start of their downfall came with a doubleheader at Morton. The Mustangs took both games by the score of 2-1, although the Indians remained in a tie for first. The following week they dropped two to Oak Park, allowing the Huskies to take over the League lead.

By far the most outstanding individual performance of the season was a no-hitter by John Smart against Waukegan. Smart pitched consistently all year, both in starting and relief roles. Pitching was a strong point for the Indians, as they allowed an average of only three and one-half runs per game. Other hurlers included Charlie Baby, Greg Dean, Bok Stanek, and Bob Page.

The sophomore team suffered from weak hitting, ending with an overall record of 3-8. At one stretch of five games, they scored only five runs while their opponents were scoring thirty-eight. They did, however, defeat Evanston at Duke Childs Field, 8-6. The frosh "A" squad won seven of eleven including two from Evanston.

The outdoor track season had to be called less than spectacular. New Trier has traditionally been the major power in its district, but this year it was predicted that the squad would take only third, behind Waukegan and top-rated Evanston. Part of the reason for the decline was an increase of talent at the aforementioned schools.

The main problem was that a large part of the varsity squad was composed of juniors. Although several performed well, an extra year of experience and development would have been valuable. At press time, the team had competed in five outdoor meets, placing first in only one. The Cindermen made a good showing in their first two triangular meets, placing second in the meet at Gary and winning at Evanston. The team went on to post a fourth-place finish in the Waukegan Relays and a second in the Maine East Relays, three points ahead of Evanston. In the District Meet at Evanston, they scored a surprising second to Evanston and as a result of this meet, nine individuals and two relay teams qualified for the State Meet at Champaign. The State finals saw New Trier earn ten points and a fourth place tie with first places by John Laidlaw and the mile relay team or Gregg Syfert, Maj Hall, Laidlaw, and Bob Timm. Laidlaw turned in one of the best individual performances of the meet by equalling the 880 state record of 1:55.

The team was handicapped throughout the season by the loss of Captain Steve Lazarra, who was bothered by injuries sustained in the football season. Lazarra's football teammate, Neil Winick, a sprinter on the track team, was also lost before the District Meet. Among the seniors, Del Mitchell, a miler, pole vaulter Tom Paul, and Bill Dear in the discus were individual standouts. Outstanding juniors included Laidlaw, state half-mile champion, and miler Roo Carson. Fritz Newenhuyse, a promising sophomore, participated on the State Meet qualifying 880 relay team. Other qualifiers were Rich Robinson in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, Bob Timm and Greg Syfert in the 440 or quarter-mile, and John Daniels in the high jump.

Coach Ben Almaguer has much to look forward to for next year because of the fine sophomore talent exhibited this year. A loss to Evanston in a triangular meet showed the sophs good individual potential rather than great team strength. In addition to Newenhuyse, Bill Farrell was a standout. The mile relay team of Newenhuyse, Farrell, Bill Friedman, and John Davis turned in a Suburban League record time of 3:31.1.

Representatives of track's three longest running events: Miler Del Mitchell, half-miler John Laidlow, and quarter-miler Bob Timm warm up for the Evanston relays. (Cherpak)

. . . AND THEN CAME THE STATE MEET

A seventh place finish in the State Meet proved a great disappointment for the varsity golf team. The squad had won four Suburban League matches making it a major contender for the state crown. The golf played by the team at Champaign was not, however, exceptional.

The team consisted, during most of the season, of five seniors: co-captains Rick Stultz and John Klein, Bob Star, Ken Granat, and Jim Freeman. These five brought the varsity a mediocre early season record but they seemed to catch fire when they travelled to the Champaign Quadrangular where they triumphed over three rugged downstate teams. Two of the defeated teams, Champaign and Quincy, were later to tie for fourth in the State Meet.

The highlight of the season came in New Trier's 311-316 victory over highly touted Waukegan. The Bulldogs were then regarded as favorites for the state championship.

The district meet proved the golfers' downfall. Although they won the meet, their second and third men, Bob Star and Ken Granat, both failed to qualify, leaving the squad at a distinct disadvantage. At Champaign, the golfers never got started, as their low man, Rick Stultz, was able to come in only fifteenth in the individual competition.

Some measure of glory may yet remain for the varsity. A triumph over Waukegan in the Suburban League meet will add another League championship to this year's long list. At press time, the Sophomores had a both unimpressive and inconclusive record of 6-5. Because of the large number of graduating golfers, it is this team that will be required to supply much of the varsity material for next year's squad.

FIRST STATE TITLE IN NINE YEARS

The second and third best doubles teams in Illinois was all that New Trier needed to bring home the school's only undisputed state championship of the year. The victors won the crown by a two-point margin, taking nine points to runner-up Arlington's seven.

Due to the qualification of only two doubles teams, the Netmen had been given only an outside chance for the title. Yet, when New Trier left the court after the first day of competition with two doubles semi-finalists, their eight points had already cinched for them the team championship over favored Hinsdale and Evanston. On the second day, however, both teams were defeated by Arlington's eventual doubles champions; co-captains John Hunter and Kit Kaufman losing in the semi-finals 6-2, 7-5, and Jay Huebsch and Art Nielsen falling 8-6, 6-2 in the finals.

It was these same four players who led the Netmen to an 11-1 dual meet record. The squad's only loss was a 3-2 decision to Hinsdale which was later revenged when New Trier vanquished both Wisconsin state champion Nicolet and Hinsdale in a triangular meet. At press time the Netmen were leading the Suburban League race with a 6-0 mark.

The sophomore teams also enjoyed great success in achieving a 9-1 dual meet record. Although they suffered from the loss of sophomores Wayne Eckerling and Jim Schoch to varsity and Steve Gritten to mononucleosis, the sophs, led by Austie Shearer and John Weil, were also undefeated in Suburban League competition.

Co-captains Hunter and Kaufman anticipate a lob from their Waukegan opponents. (Cherpak)

GAA PARTICIPANTS HAD A BUSY YEAR, WITH ACTIVITIES RANGING FROM A "POW-WOW" IN THE FALL TO A "SAFARI" IN THE SPRING.

The activities of the Girls' Athletic Association filled the calendar. In September, the Indian Pow-Wow, which included demonstrations of swimming and soccer previews, introduced newcomers to the opportunities for fun in GAA. The annual GAA booklet was published to acquaint freshmen and new girls with the varied programs of the organization and explained the award system, leadership positions, new membership requirements and that bane of spring: initiation. After the girls were educated in GAA, they began to come out to after-school sports which included soccer, hockey, swimming, dance, and tennis during the fall season.

Colder weather didn't keep GAA from functioning in the all-school Dad's Day Homecoming and the Halloween Party, but sports still held the spotlight. Mid-season activities included basketball, dance, swimming, tumbling, recreational games, co-ed badminton, and the newly added modern gymnastics. The annual service project was sending Christmas stockings to one of Chicago's settlement houses, which has been done so successfully in past years. A "Meeting of the Minds" called on all GAA leaders to combine their ingenuity to think up something new. "Yndig," a new charm course, was the result. Despite a rousing publicity campaign, it attracted only limited participation. More successful winter activities included volleyball (which prompted higher senior participation than anything else), swimming, fencing, ice skating, and dance. The winter sports season ended with the traditional faculty vs. winning senior class team in both volleyball and basketball. The student teams admitted that those were very easy games to lose.

In March the Bonus Day gave struggling freshman point-winners a boost in their climb toward their one hundred and twenty-five point goal, which had to be reached by April 19. By playing volleyball on certain afternoons, freshmen could earn, not the usual five points each day, but ten. They eagerly anticipated the informal initiation scheduled for May 26, "Safari in India," and the costumes they had to wear to school were interesting indeed. While the Frosh prepared for initiation, girls from all classes played softball, lacrosse, and tennis. They danced and practiced their archery and riding skills. I.M. participated with GAA in the mixed doubles tournament in tennis, but was excluded from the bi-annual dance program which involved more than one hundred and twenty dancers. The spring season was resplendent with traditional occasions. High point winners got their awards at an assembly; initiates and the GAA board met at the gym-jam; the next year's officers were elected. Finally, on May 29, the GAA banquet's solemn candle-lighting ceremony ended the year's procession of gay events and promised even better things for the coming year.

CONTINUED EXPANSION OF I. M. SPORTS

JEFFREY COHEN
Director

JAMES WESTERMAN
Team Sports

INTRODUCTION OF NEW ACTIVITIES DID NOT REDUCE THE QUALITY OF SUPERVISION OF THE TRADITIONAL INTRAMURAL PROGRAM.

JOSEPH WAGNER
Individual Sports

Intramural Sports kept pace with New Trier's expanding male enrollment by increasing the number of staff members and the extent of supervision. The staffs kept the game schedules and results organized. Faculty sponsors Mr. Fred Barney, Mr. Walter Gart, and Mr. Wayne Wiemer, along with student supervisors, kept the participating boys under control.

Much of I.M.'s success in '62-'63 was due to good teamwork on the part of its members. Student Director Jeff Cohen had the job of coordinating the activities of the staffs, each of which had its own director. Perhaps the two most important staffs were Team Sports and Individual Sports. Team Sports, headed by Jim Westerman, took care of the tournaments: football, basketball, volleyball, and baseball. Game supervisors, better known as referees, were needed for these sports, and many volunteered their services without pay. The Individual Sports staff, headed by Joe Wagner, offered boys the opportunity for personal achievement, rather than achievement on an advisor room basis. Other important committees were Points and Communications.

JAMES LEV
Special Events

I.M.'s connection with the student body was through the advisor room athletic manager. Meetings were held each week and problems, complaints, and suggestions were discussed, and the reps were informed of coming events. The I.M. board members met each Wednesday to discuss game protests, to record scores, and to send out green slips informing boys or teams of upcoming competition.

The nine I.M. board members found little difficulty in mixing business and pleasure. Accompanied by their faculty sponsors, they spent the weekend before school started at Lake Geneva, swimming and water skiing. The basic purpose of this outing, however, was to make plans for the coming year, and several meetings were held with this intent. The trip proved to be a success, and is likely to be continued in the future. Three I.M. parties were held during the course of the year, but the activities at these parties remains unknown.

One of I.M.'s greatest triumphs was the introduction of individual weightlifting. Boys participated in their own weight group among members of their class, in a bench press, standing press, and curl. This was the first year of weightlifting as an I.M. sport, and the participation was exceptional.

GEORGE TREGAY
Points

There were three sizeable upsets in basketball, the best attended of all I.M. sports. Mr. H. Brown's junior advisor room defeated Mr. Fearheiley's seniors for the school championship, Tri-Ship beat the I.M. staff, and the Senior All-Stars defeated the faculty, 60-56. To no one's surprise, the senior advisor rooms of Mr. Knupfer and Mr. Gustafson captured the football and volleyball crowns, respectively. The sophomores, represented by Steve Aschenbacher, won the school free throw championship, and freshman Robert Kirkland ran away with cross country honors. These tournaments were run by the tournament board composed of seniors Dave Cocroft, Ken Ellis, Dave Kallick, Jim Martin, Joe Pasinato, Tom Smith, Bob Star and Tom Stapleton.

ANTICIPATING THE NEW NEW TRIER

WHILE PLANS FOR THE NEW SCHOOL BECAME MORE DEFINITE, IMPROVEMENT IN CURRICULUM CONTINUED AT NEW TRIER EAST.

Dr. William H. Cornog, Superintendent. (D. Smith)

This was the forward-looking year. Two favorable decisions by voters of the township made it possible for everyone associated with the school to anticipate a second New Trier High School in 1965. Planning sessions involving school officials and architects became more specific, and the blueprint-draped conference table in the Board of Education meeting room was a familiar sight. There was no doubt about the wishes of the township. The bond issue for $8,750,000 to pay for the new school was approved on March 16 by 11,813 out of 14,813 voters, or slightly more than 77 per cent. All precincts reported a majority in favor. The purchase of forty-five acres at Winnetka and Happ roads in Northfield, with a bond issue of $1,825,000, had been approved on June 9, 1962, by a vote of 12,530 to 6,108. The land-purchase bond issue carried in fifteen of the eighteen precincts. There was a good chance that construction would begin in the fall of 1963. The new school eventually will accommodate 2,500 students while the present school will keep an enrollment of 3,500.

Concern with the future did not take precedence over the present, however. Teachers in several departments explored new methods and materials to enrich the present curriculum. The Classics department produced new materials for the second- and third-year Latin courses to either supplement or replace existing books. Courses in the Chinese and Italian languages were offered in addition to French, Spanish, and German, while an extracurricular class in Portuguese attracted a number of students. The Science department set up parallel Chemistry sections to try out two different approaches, which had been developed by national committees. The English department developed preliminary plans to attempt to discover whether a student's writing may be improved by more intensive reading and a lesser amount of actual composition practice.

Two programs involving team teaching were in progress. In English and History, 105 students studied together in a special two-hour period with two teachers from each department. Activity ranged from lectures to small discussion groups and to independent study in the library. Four classes of juniors in United States History and four in English alternated for special purposes in a suite of rooms during first period every day. The suite arrangement permitted such activities as films, panel discussions, special reports, and lectures to be conducted for a large number of students in a study hall while groups of thirty could meet in the classrooms.

The otherwise productive year was clouded by the loss of Tom Nisbet, whose 1963 varsity basketball team had made probably the most impressive record of any in the school's history. He died on Sunday, April 7, remembered by students and associates in a way which all teachers would desire.

THE SENIORS WATCHED AN EVENTFUL YEAR SLIP PAST THEM, GLAD AND SORRY IT WAS THEIR LAST AT NEW TRIER.

Students are told as frosh, and again as sophs and juniors, that senior year is the most exciting of New Trier life. "Seniors are the leaders of the school," they are told, but when they learn for themselves that this is true, they seem to go power-mad. Seniors led every major organization, from Girls' Club and Tri-Ship to the staffs of the publications. They took the blame for the messiest lunch-hall until they quickly rallied and improved it to a state of neatness beyond all reasonable reproach. Of the 31 National Merit finalists, there were seven scholarship winners—a record-breaking percentage. The top places in the National Math, French, and German Examinations went to seniors too. Shortly before graduation, recognition of the seniors' day-to-day service throughout their four years at N.T. was made at the Awards Assembly.

The month of April was tragic for some, glorious for others, as colleges' letters of acceptance or rejection came through the mail. Most seniors called home to learn the crucial news, but a hasty few picked up their mail at the post office before it could be delivered to their homes.

All work and no play . . . no one could say the seniors were dull. The Senior Canteens brightened life for all those brave enough to watch Dracula and/or Brigitte Bardot flicks. The The favorites were, of course, virile Ral Donner and his Combo, fondly labelled "The Five Dancing Dope-Addicts." The Tri-Ship and Holiday Dances were more traditional senior-run successes.

The most typically senior events were those which were not pre-planned. The Senior Girls' Dating Bureau which was born, burgeoned, and blew up within six exciting weeks . . . the crucial decision, "What shall we get our advisor as a farewell gift?" . . . the second-semester relaxation of the homework-conscience . . . trying on long, white, modest-necklined, cap-sleeved graduation dresses by the dozen . . . reading about the "Senior Class" as personified by our Rich Holdredge in the pages of Look magazine . . . knitting . . .

The Senior Picnic at Elder Lane Beach on June 7th (ECHOES Day) was the opportunity for frantic informal goodbyes and a good time. The double-ceremony graduation on June 13, placed the diplomas in the proper hands, and the newly-made alumni set out for the gala Graduation Dance at the Evanston Women's Club.

The Class of '63 established a scholarship fund in the memory of all of its members who died during the past four years. Joan Gallagher, Ellen Antolini, Jim Yedor, and Pamela Schreiner, whose recent death clouded what would have been a perfect year, were honored by this scholarship.

SENIOR CANTEEN BOARD—SEATED: Tucker, Button, Jones, Gore, Hallburg, Garcia. STANDING: McLucas, Boyd, Klee, Bartholomay, Isgrig, Snorf, Yost. (Rau)

When Dr. Jack Buffington came to lecture about the "Effects of Alcohol on the Human Body," he received various reactions from juniors. Bob Koether and Norman MacLean (right) seemed to find something amusing, but Jim Brown (below) paid careful attention. (Photos by Paul Cherpak)

Written and directed by Harmon Dresner, "Ha-Ha, Hester" was a musical-comedy version of The Scarlet Letter. At left Hester, Val Yaffe, makes her entrance singing "I'm Hester Prynceton." The sinister Chillingworth, Mel Mackler (above) plots his revenge as Puritan Burt Levy looks on. In the grand fiinale (below) the cast celebrates the reconciliation effected between Hester and Chillingworth by singing "You Gotta Have a Letter." (Photos by Mort Steinberg)

The doctors say it can hardly be felt. The tuberculin test is administered with a small device that has three very short, sharp, sterile needles which deposit toxin just beneath the skin. Above, we see the reactions of Lynn Pirie, Pat Grossman, and Ronnie Hollander. Below: Sue Frank, Cheryl Raichert, Billie McCormack. (Photos by Barry Fox)

JUNIOR YEAR— THE STEP UP

THE STRUGGLE FOR BIG-WHEELDOM BEGAN ALONG WITH AN INCREASED AWARENESS OF THE COLLEGE-STUDDED FUTURE.

Junior year is a big one in any student's life. Increased privileges go hand and hand with increased responsibilities. The class of '64 met these challenges of maturity with fervor and success. The change was basically one of becoming upper-classmen. Suddenly the juniors found themselves planning for college, taking myriads of examinations, and getting priority in their choices for Lagniappe tickets.

College planning was one of the most important activities of the juniors. They swarmed to college conferences in order to determine which colleges might some day be lucky enough to receive their applications. Several "college advice" assemblies were held continuing in the unfortunate tradition of separate assemblies for boys and girls. They also took a full barrage of tests, including the SCAT, STEP, SAT'S, National Merit, and Achievements.

In the fall the juniors elected their class officers. After a hard-fought campaign, Margie Meyers emerged as president, Tom Trukenbrod as vice-president, Reri Keller, secretary, and Bob Guelich, treasurer. These spirited officers capably led the class through its many harrowing experiences. They had their hands full planning for the class parties. The November class party was "North Side Story." Juniors were delighted to find the walls and ceiling of the Student Lounge covered with money, even though it was not real. Nip Duncan and Bob Trukenbrod entertained the class by their portrayal of Stubby Student, and Scott Lange, among other things, rocked them with a drum solo. In short, good decorations and entertainment made the party one of the best ever. The junior girls' dance, "Lollipops and Roses," held in February at the Glencoe Woman's Club, was highlighted by the wild music of Tommy Jones and his band.

Juniors manifested their great school spirit by bringing in the most cans during the fall canned foods drive and by leading the junior-senior cheering section. Towards the end of the year, juniors began planning for their senior year with the election of class officers. Plans for the Junior Prom to be held in June were also made with the selection of capable committee heads. Despite the many difficulties encountered, the juniors came through with spirit and enthusiasm. In general, prospects for next year's seniors look promising.

SOPHS

THE SWINGINGEST SOCIALITES

Characteristically the most spirited class, the sophomores faced their second year at New Trier aware of the problems which their size presented to them. Since New Trier fire regulations refused to allow the huge class all to congregate in the student lounge, the dining hall was opened to class parties for the first time. Two very successful sophomore parties were held in this new setting.

"Malabu Christmas" was the title of their first party. The sophomores threw themselves into planning it, producing some of the most original decorations in New Trier's glorious history of party decorating. Santa wore a bathing suit while palm trees stood decked in Christmas ornaments. Many complained that the mistletoe was not authentic. March 16 was the date for "Irish Ides," the second class party. Saint Pat won top rank on the decorations but shades of Julius Caesar could be seen throughout. The steering committee spent hours debating whether to have the party semi-formal or costume. Literally at the last moment, some lone soul took a chance and suggested informal attire. His motion was cheered and unanimously passed. Consequently, everyone felt at ease and the evening was more enjoyable for all.

For the second consecutive year, the steering committee held a successful dinner-dance for the new sophomores. Predominantly a mixer, the dance afforded wonderful opportunities for the new students to meet each other and the leaders of their class.

Not only was sophomore spirit displayed in their participation in the charity drives at school and their attendance at athletic events, but also in their enthusiastic signing out of school to get their drivers' licenses. Talent as well as spirit ran high in the class. Examples of this were the large number of sophomores who participated in "Allegro," Lagniappe, and the opera. A well-rounded sophomore class made the traditionally mediocre year of high school into one of excitement and achievement.

"DON'T TREAD ON ME"

DEFYING OPPRESSIVE UPPERCLASSMEN, FRESHMEN DEMONSTRATED IMAGINATION AND INITIATIVE IN EVERYTHING THEY DID.

Though the class of '66 cannot boast of being the "largest ever," it certainly can take pride in the unusual initiative it displayed throughout the year. The class compensated for its numerical deficiency with an abundance of typical freshman enthusiasm and atypical freshman creativity. At the beginning of the year, the class of '66, like previous incoming classes, had to be somewhat led by the hand. The freshmen were formally introduced to the school and its workings at the annual orientation day in September, and a little later in the month a special Freshman Night was held. A frosh mixer was sponsored by the senior helpers to give them an opportunity to get better acquainted with each other. Thus aided, the class quickly adjusted to New Trier life and refused to conform to the traditional mold of the naive, much-abused frosh. Taking the slogan "Don't tread on me" as their keynote, they determined to shatter New Trier's established illusions of freshmen.

Defying tradition, members of the class attempted to prove that their abilities were equal to those of their "elders." They endeavored to play a significant role in all of the major activities. Freshman participation was particularly outstanding in the entertainment field as evidenced by Judy Carrington's portrayal of Lotus Blossom in "Teahouse of the August Moon" and Peg Sweeny's delightful interpretation of "Jane" in Lagniappe. The freshman class party, "Sham-Rock," was another example of their break with tradition. For the first time, freshmen were able to monopolize two major areas of the school for a party; students congregated in the lounge for entertainment, and then went on to dance in the dining hall to the swinging tunes of Denny and the Dukes.

Under the leadership of their officers—President Arno Kahn, Vice-President Chris Keller, Secretary Sue Wipple, and Treasurer Pete Rossiter—the freshmen tried to establish an exclusively freshman no-name. They were thwarted in this attempt, however, when much to their distress Council took over the scheduled room for one of their no-names. The officers were also busy making plans for their class's future. They hoped to post special notices in 1963-64 on all '66 activities in order to promote class unity. They also wished to replace the two formal parties with three more unconventional gatherings at which students could enter and leave whenever they pleased. Through these and other plans, the freshmen not only succeeded in adjusting to New Trier customs but also attempted to change some of them. Their future promises to be filled with additional exciting innovations.
